The single greatest challenge to the cemetery's management is the overall preservation of the cemetery's sacred nature and the broader community message with a constant reminder to all that as Catholics we believe and hope in the promise of eternal life.

The cemetery with its statues, monuments, decorations and overall appearance is seen as a place of faith, a place to heal, and in our grief most importantly a symbol of hope with the teachings in the resurrection. This is not just a sentiment -- but a core value belief that should never be lost and is often in peril and readily dismissed by secular society.

We teach the current and future generations of cemetery visitors with the words and symbols that appear on our monuments. Augmenting epitaphs of faith and diminishing the words not related to our faith beliefs is our goal, and is the purpose and intent of monument regulations. We remain selective, careful, and thoughtful of the positive Christian message and the symbols of true importance that we impress upon our community. In return, each of us as a Christian member of this community helps shape and share our beliefs to those who walk the grounds today and those who are the church of tomorrow.
